

Abstract of the Disclosure

A bushing for an electrical device including an insulating core, where at least a part of the insulating core includes a continuous diffusion barrier with firm adhesion to the insulating core.

The bushing is manufactured by coating at least a part of the insulating core with the continuous diffusion barrier.